

Dream A Dream Annual Report | 2013-2014

Message from Co-founder & CEO

Young people today are growing up in a complex, unpredictable environment. While drug abuse, crime, violence, and poverty continue to be critical issues, today's youth also face the challenge of coping with a fast-changing, complex and unpredictable world. To cope with this frantic pace of change in the world, young people need a very different set of skills to survive and succeed and as NGOs, youth workers, educators and governments we need a new lens to look at solutions. Increasingly, it is becoming difficult to predict what the future holds for our young people; therefore it is not the known but the ability to handle the unknown that is going to define success.

When young people develop the ability to take initiative, solve problems creatively, overcome difficulties, manage conflict and interact with each other with empathy, it helps them overcome adversity, build resilience and prepare them to succeed in an unpredictable future.

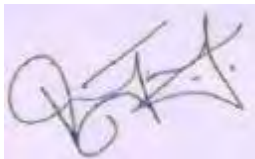

To be able to achieve that, re-imagining learning is critical.

Education has to move beyond delivering knowledge to also building capabilities and life skills. Teachers will have to redefine their role from being 'givers of knowledge and information' to being 'facilitators of learning'. It is critically important to re-imagine learning that is relevant for the 21st century; learning that is focused on empowering young people with life skills and abilities that prepare them to succeed.

It is evident that imparting life skills is the need of the hour. With steadfast focus, inimitable passion and your support, we want to make this movement a great success.

We are happy to present our Dream A Dream Annual Report 2013-14. Our credentials, our credibility and our sincerity speak through this report. We hope you will continue to extend your support and encouragement and stay with us on this journey.

Thanks for reading,

Vishal Talreja

About Dream A Dream

Dream A Dream is a 15-year old non-profit organization focused on developing life skills among the most vulnerable populations of young people in India. Over 15 years, Dream A Dream has impacted the lives of over 50,000 young people through its programmes in sports, arts, outdoor experiential camps, mentoring and career enhancement. Working with over 35 partners, 2000 volunteers and a host of corporate and individual supporters, Dream A Dream has brought together a community of supporters to change the lives of children and young people. Dream A Dream's unique and innovative life skills approach to learning complements school curriculum and transforms teachers bringing creativity and empathy in school environments and helping young people overcome adversity and flourish in a fast changing world.

Why Life Skills?

In today's unpredictable world, transitioning from dependence to independence and negotiating your way through life-changing phases is becoming exceedingly challenging for young people from vulnerable backgrounds. To build a viable future and become change agents, education needs to go beyond delivering knowledge. That is why targeted programmes that help young people develop Life Skills are crucial.

Testimonials from Volunteers

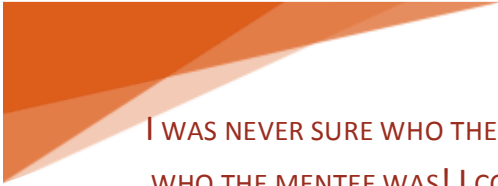

ONE OF THE THINGS THAT I USED TO LOOK FORWARD TO IN EVERY MEETING WITH MY MENTEE WAS THE FEELING OF BEING TAKEN INTO A SLIGHTLY DIFFERENT WORLD THAN THAT OF MINE WHICH WAS QUITE A REVEALING AND REFRESHING EXPERIENCE.

Kumar Prateek,
Mentor-Volunteer

I LEARNT HOW TO DEAL WITH STUDENTS THROUGH NEW WAYS OF ART AND THESE WAYS ARE DIFFERENT FROM COMPLICATED SCIENTIFIC WAYS. THIS IS ENOUGH FOR TEACHING.

Hamed Mahmoud,
AIESEC International Volunteer from Egypt

I WAS NEVER SURE WHO THE MENTOR WAS OR WHO THE MENTEE WAS! I COULD SEE A GREAT CHANGE IN THE COMMUNICATION AND CONFIDENCE BETWEEN US, AND AT THE SAME TIME I COULD FEEL THE GROWTH IN MYSELF IN ATTENDING TO ANY INDIVIDUAL.

Amit Khorana,
Mentor-Volunteer

Our paper on “The Life Skills Assessment Scale: Measuring life skills of disadvantaged children and young people in the developing world” has been published in the International Journal of Social Behaviour and Personality. The Dream Life Skill Assessment Scale is now the first tool in the world to measure life-skills development in disadvantaged children.

We successfully facilitated a large scale volunteering workshop for close to 150 representatives from NGOs and CSR units of companies at the IBM Corporate Service Corps conference in Bangalore.

Dream A Dream, In association with Christ University, Bangalore, organized the first ever conference on the “Life Skills Assessment Scale”.

During a visit by Goals for Girls from the US, we organized a coaching clinic and friendly tournament involving 42 girls from Dream A Dream and 20 girls from the Goals for Girls team.

Dreaming of positive paths for India's youth: Dream a Dream
Carlin Carr, Bangalore Community Manager

Juvenile crime all over the world often goes hand-in-hand with lack of opportunities. Blight-stricken areas from New York to Nairobi with low employment rates and education levels leave directionless youth with few options. Lacking support systems to show them alternative paths, teens often take to criminal activities. While crime amongst youth has not been such an issue in India's urban areas, recent studies show a marked escalation in illicit activities.

In fact, the "State of the Urban Youth India 2012: Employ Skills" report that came out last year says that juvenile crime rose by 40 percent between 2001 and 2010. The youth involved were largely from low-income working families, and the study education is an important factor with over 55 percent juvenile illiterate or with limited primary education," says a DNA article study.

A Bangalore-based organization, Dream a Dream, has four youngsters from vulnerable backgrounds on a more positive focuses on building life skills to equip youth with the decision solving and interpersonal and emotional skills necessary to adulthood. "Young people from vulnerable communities often environments, where they are exploited or lack opportunities such as residential centers, offer a more loving environment."

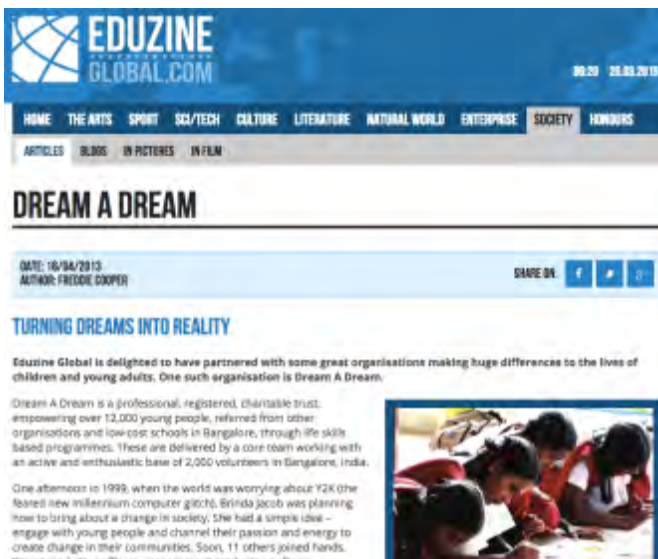

Our work and approach was described as part of the solution that "not only makes for better individuals but better communities as well" in an article published by URG.im
